ORIGINALLY WRITTEN
By R. Brookes, M. D.

The fourth American, from the London edition of 1819, with additions and improvements

BY WILLIAM DARBY,
Member of the New-York Historical Society, Author of a Map and Statistical Account of Louisiana; Emigrant's Guide, and a Tour from New-York to the Desert.

IN order to render this edition in a peculiar manner suitable to an American reader, the publishers have employed William Darby of this city as editor, to collect and insert the names of such remarkable places on this continent, adjacent islands and elsewhere, as have not hitherto found a place in any gazetteer extant; to modify such articles as are erroneously or defectively stated, in the original work; and in fine, as far as practicable, to comprise all the places worthy of notice in the world.

So many changes have taken place in Europe in the course of the last 8 or 10 years, as to render necessary a careful digest of the present limits of most states in that quarter of the world.

It must be obvious that in an age of active enterprise, discoveries, improvements and changes in objects of Geographical Science will be so rapid, and unceasing in their operations, as in a few years, to render defective or obsolete any System of Geography, however perfect they may be at the time of publication. It must also be more than apparent that the correctness of these observations apply with particular force to America; in one section of which, a widely extended revolution is daily developing, as objects of Geographical and Historical record, names of places, very imperfectly or entirely unknown to science, previous to the occurrence of the events which have given them a title to literary attention; and in another quarter, the energies of a free and enterprising people are effecting revolutions on the face of nature, with a celerity and an extent which has no parallel in the progress of human affairs.

The publication of the work has hitherto been delayed in order to procure the census of 1820, which has not yet been completed.
The publishers however confidently hope to receive the necessary document, and present the work to their patrons, in the course of the ensuing season, in a form worthy of their acceptance; but the Gazetteer will not be put to press before the returns of the census are obtained, collated, and the various articles digested according to its results.

The Post Office list will be carefully arranged up to the present time, and the mark P. O. placed before the description of all places containing a Post Office.

No comment can be necessary to elucidate the advantages which must be comprised in a portable volume, in which will be concentrated the proposed improvements and additions.

RELIGIOUS.

The following is an extract from the Third Annual Report of the Methodist Missionary Society, convened in New York, June 26.

It would be an easy matter to swell this Report with interesting accounts of the proceedings and success of other societies, all of which are directing their attention to the attainment of the great consummation, namely, the salvation of the world.—But it is unnecessary to enter into minute details.
We would just observe however, in passing, that the numerous Bible Societies in Europe and America, Tract societies, Sunday School Institutions, Free Schools, with Missionary Societies, are like so many streams issuing from the great Fountain of Divine goodness, pouring their tributary waters into the broad river of Christian benevolence, and rapidly wafting souls towards the ocean of eternal felicity.

The West India and South Sea Islands are receiving His law who died to redeem them. The vast tribes of East Indies are witnessing the rising beams of the Sun of Righteousness. The hills and valleys of Palestine, once the theatre of such grand events, are echoing with the voice of divine mercy. The depressed sons of Africa are stretching out their hands to God; and the tribes of savage men on our own continent are beginning to listen to the sound of "salvation in Jesus' name;" while the poorest and most destitute parts of our own scattered population are reached by the feet of the zealous Missionary.
All these are sharing the beneficial results of these Societies.

And while Christianity is thus marching forward, and making its solemn entry into the temples of idolatry, and planting its standard amidst the ruins of infidelity, science is following in its train, and pouring its enlightening beams into the human understanding; and thus preparing man for the full enjoyment of that pure offspring of the Most High. And while Christianity transforms the heart, and science enlightens the understanding, man is becoming qualified to move with becoming dignity in this life, and finally to join the spirits of just men made perfect in heaven.

O, brethren! with an object of such magnitude before us, who can remain unmoved? Let the arm that will not be stretched out in support of such a cause, forget its cunning. The voice of God calls—arise. The time to favor Zion, even the set time, is now come.
A halo of glory already surrounds the head of the intrepid Missionary who is successfully elevating the cross of Christ among the savage tribes of men; and he loudly calls for more to come over to his help.

The time indeed, is not far distant when every man who shall have engaged in this godlike enterprise will exist in it as the happiest period of existence, the highest honor ever conferred upon him, when he embarked in the cause of missions. The lot of those who have looked with cold indifference, and, with envious eyes have waited the doubtful result, will stand abashed, filled with confusion at their own slowness; and will, if their zeal for God be not quite extinguished, petition the privilege to redeem their lost time, by being permitted, last, to participate in the grand work of conquering the world by the power of truth.

The following is a description of our blessed Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, as he appeared on earth. It is from the pen of a Heathen, and is an authentic account of that great personage. It is a strong evidence in favour of the Christian religion, inasmuch as it admits all that could possibly be expected from one who was not only disinterested himself, but who was not a believer in the divinity of the personage he describes.

It was the usual custom of the Roman governors to advertise the senate and people of such material things as happened in their provinces; Publius Lentulus, who was president, in writing to the senate at Rome from Palestine, in the reign of Tiberius Cæsar the emperor, gave the following description of Christ.—Edrs.

"Conscript Fathers,

There appeared in those days, a man of great virtue, named Jesus Christ, who is yet living among us, and of the Gentiles accepted for a prophet of truth; but his own disciples call him the Son of God. He raiseth the dead, and cureth all manner of diseases. A man of stature somewhat tall and comely, with a very reverend countenance, such as the beholders may both love and fear; his hair is of the colour of a flax fully ripe, plain to his ears; whence downward it is more orient of dour, somewhat curling, and waving but his shoulders. In the midst of his head is a scum or a partition of his hair, after the manner of the Nazarites; his forehead plain and delicate, his face without spot or wrinkle, beautified with a comely red; his nose and mouth exactly formed; his beard thick, and the colour of his hair, not of any great length, but forked; his look innocent; his eyes grey, clear and quick—in respecting, sensible—in admonishing, courteous—in speaking, very moderate and wise—in proportion of body, well haped. None have seen him laugh; but many have seen him weep. A man of his singular beauty, surpasses the children of men."

Philopomen having delivered the Lacedæmonians from the oppressions they had long groaned under, they ordered the palace and furniture of the usurper Nabis to be sold, and the authority from thence, to the amount of one hundred and twenty talents, to be presented to Philopomen, as a token of their gratitude. Deputies therefore were to be appointed who should carry the money, and desire Philopomen, in the name of the senate, to accept of the present. And on this occasion it was, says Plutarch, that the virtues of the generous Achæan appeared—in its greatest lustre; for so great was the opinion which the Spartans had of his probity and disinterestedness, that no one could be found who would take upon him to offer the present. Struck with veneration, and fear of displeasing him, they all begged to be excused.
At last they obliged by a public decree, one Timolaus, who had formerly been his guest, to go to Megalopolis, where Philopomen lived, and offer him the present. Timolaus, with great reluctance, set out for Megalopolis, where he was kindly received and entertained by Philopomen. Here he had an opportunity of observing the severity of his whole conduct, the greatness of his mind, the frugality of his life, and the regularity of his manners; which struck him with such awe, that he did not dare once to mention the present he had come to offer him; inasmuch that giving some other pretence to his journey, he returned home with the present. The Lacedæmonians sent him again; but he could no more prevail on himself now than the first time, to mention the true cause of his journey.
At last, going a third time, he ventured with the utmost reluctance, to acquaint Philopomen with the offer he had to make him in the name of the Lacedæmonians. Philopomen heard him with great calmness; but the instant he had done speaking, he set out with him to Sparta, where after expressing the greatest obligations to the senate, he advised them to lay out their money in corrupting and purchasing the wicked, and such as divided the citizens, and set them at variance with their seditions discourses, to the end that, being paid for their silence, they might not occasion so many distractions in the government; for it is much more advisable, said he, to stop a crazy man's mouth than a friend's; as for me, I shall always be your friend, and you shall reap the benefit of my friendship without expence.

Interesting to Farmers.—It is not sufficiently certain, that the horse, bitt or grub, by which so many horses are annually destroyed, are produced from eggs or nits, which are deposited chiefly in the inside moist surface of the tongue, and are from thence conveyed with food into the stomach.

Any person who chooses, may reduce it to an experiment for himself. In the season for it, let a few hairs be clipped having these nits adhering to them, moisten the inside of the hand by the application of a little spittle, and close it upon the nits, and he will find them hatched in a few seconds.

It is therefore recommended, to be careful to remove these eggs by scraping them off with a knife, or washing them off with an infusion of tobacco every third day throughout the season in which they are deposited.

If this be done, there is no doubt but the destruction which is made by this hateful insect, may be completely prevented.

The eggs are deposited on the fore part of the knee, and backpart of the shoulder of the horse, by a certain species of fly. The fly is called oesbriva egui. These eggs or nits become ripe in the course of four or five days.

When thus ripened, the slightest application of warmth and moisture is sufficient to bring forth, in an instant, the latent larva, that is, the insect in the first form. At this time, if the tongue of the horse touch the eggs, its little door (operculum) is thrown open and a small active worm is produced which readily adheres to the stomach.

How to preserve Cider.—A correspondent in the Providence Journal, having in view the prospect of an abundant cider season, recommends to those farmers whose orchards are well supplied with apples, and who are desirous of preserving their wholesome juice in seasons less productive, the following manner of preservation, which has been successfully tested by experiment:

Take your first made cider, which is fit only for the still, and convert it into brandy: put nine gallons of this brandy into a new barrel: then fill the barrel with late made cider, and bung it tight. This gives you the strength of near four barrels of cider, in one.

The strength given it by the brandy will preserve its sweetness entire, for many years—the barrels should be new, and clean—to guard against the rotting which is caused by damp cellars, they should be iron bound, and well painted.
In this manner any farmer who has the fruit, may put up in six barrels the essence of twenty barrels of good cider, and keep it until a time of need. It will fine itself, and will grow better with an increase of age. Besides, if it is not wanted as cider, it is a very pleasant cordial, when undiluted, and with the addition of a bushel of wild grapes, bruised & put into each barrel, it imbibes the peculiar flavour of the grape, and becomes a very pleasant wine. Now is the time for grinding up the early windfalls; and the cider which these produce, if distilled, will enrich the brandy necessary for making the cider wine.

Something extraordinary.—On the 5th of August, at New Orleans, a musket ball was extracted from the body of Mr. Wyngard, where it had remained since the 4th of August, 1814; when it was received at the battle of Mackinac, under col. Crogan. When extricated, the part flattened by the bone was covered with a black crust, which on being dried and set fire to, exploded with a white flame similar to fresh powder, with the exception of a sulphurous smell, from which it was entirely free.

EASTPORT, Oct. 12.
Magnanimous act.—A few days since as the packet Reindeer, captain Applebee, was leaving St. John, and had got near the 'Beacon,' a boat went along side for the purpose of putting on board two female passengers, and just as they were getting on board the packet, the boat sheered off and one of the ladies fell into the water. The boatmen were panic struck and made no effort to save her; the current which was rapid, was fast carrying her from the vessel, and she was about sinking when lieut. Patrick, of the U. S. army first discovered her, and plunged into the water, and succeeded in rescuing the unfortunate woman from an untimely death, but not without great risk of his life and struggling in the water for some time.

I thank God, says Dr. Watts, that I have learned to retract my former sentiments, and change them, when upon stricter search and review they appear less agreeable to the divine standard of faith.

It doth not belong to such poor imperfect beings as we are, to remain forever immovable in all the same opinions, that we have once indulged, nor to stamp every sentiment with immortality. For a man to be obstinately tenacious of an old mistake, and incorrigibly fond of an obscure phrase or conception, because he has once admitted it, is the shame, and not the glory of human nature.

David Hume, the celebrated historian and infidel, observed, that one objection he had to Christianity was, that almost all its professors he saw, were melancholy. On which bishop Horn remarked, that might very well be, for in the first place, he probably saw but very few Christians, his acquaintance and associates being mostly of another cast; and in the second place, the eight of him would be enough to make a good man melancholy at any time.

Insensibility.—Though I frequently wish for that insensibility on which the ease of the heart depends, yet I never admire those who are possessed of it. I should suppose myself, if I thought I could walk the stage of life With thoughtless eye and sauntering pace And broad felicity of face.

A western paper says, that copperas water is an effectual remedy against that filthy inmate, bugs.

The best part of beauty is that which a picture cannot express.

FOREIGN.

GREECE.

ISPARA, Aug. 13.

Since the brilliant affairs of the 23th and 26th July, and until the 11th of this month, the Turks have been constantly beaten; there remain very few of the 25,000 men who entered the Morea, and they are dispersed in small bodies that are not able to make good their retreat, and will be forced to surrender or perish with hunger.

The Turkish combined fleet is at Patras, without daring to undertake any thing, having neither troops to land, nor provisions to furnish to the fortresses that are still kept in the power of the Musselmans. Sixty-six Greek vessels of war are in our port, with twenty-two frigates; this fleet will set sail to-morrow to meet the enemy.

The corps of Maurecordato, in Epirus, commanded by General Norman, has been twice beaten by Chourschid Pacha; but having at last received reinforcements, it again attacked that Pacha, completely routed and drove him back as far as Larissa. Omer Urioni will soon be attacked; our army is following him.

SPAIN.

On the 28th of August the Priest Cezar was executed at Ronda for having commanded a party of the factious.

The council of War appointed to try Gen. Elio met on the 27th of August, and proceeded with his trial. Elio delivered his defence which lasted four hours. When he was ordered to withdraw he fainted. The council unanimously voted punishment of death against him, and he was executed.

The Royalists of Catalonia are concentrated in the environs of Cervera, and occupy a strong position in the convent called San Ramon. The constitutionalists are only separated by a wall, and there is continual fighting between the parties. The insurgents were 8000 in number. The troops are said to have no repose.

San Felice de Guixois a town on the frontiers of Spain, was attacked on the 21st of August; and burnt. Forty-two houses were destroyed, and some old men, women and children perished. The attack was made by an army of Faith 800 strong, who put the constitutionalists to flight, and killed many of them in the streets and squares.

MADRID, Sept. 2.—A party of robbers were on the point of attacking General Quiroga on his march to Galicia. They were desisted by the General in time to make his escape. He was without an escort.

MADRID, Sept. 8.—By the courier which arrived yesterday evening from Valencia, we received the following document:

"By the officer charged with the duty of the commandant of the eighth military district.

Soldiers.—The ordinary council of War assembled on the 27th ult., to try Lieut. Gen. D. Xavier Elio, for the scandalous conspiracy which he formed on the 30th of May last, in the citadel of their capital, has condemned him to the garrote, after having suffered degradation. The result of the process having been communicated to me, I forwarded it to the Auditor of War, ad interim, in order that he might furnish his opinion with regard to the conformability of the sentence."

From the Moldavian Frontiers, Aug. 22. According to accounts entitled to credit, in the dreadful fire in Jassy, 4,700 houses were destroyed or burnt. Many hundred Christians of all nations were thereby ruined, and the damage is immense. The merchants who, trusting to the deceitful promises of foreign agents, who were in the constant habit of representing the Turks as so honest and fond of order, and who suffer such an immense loss, are the most to be pitied. The Boyars are also ruined—even their burned treasures have been dug up. The Austrian Consul's house was alone saved by great exertions: Many suppose that it was planned that the Turks should invite the credulous merchants to Jassy in order to rob them. From this cruelty we are almost bound to admit that the General Consul Von P. caused the well known warning to be issued to the Boyars, independently of the policy of this court.

A young man in England while fishing, became abort of worms, his usual bait, and as a substitute took out the eyes of some perch which he had caught. With this bait he soon hooked a fish, and on pulling it out he found the hook fastened in the eye of a perch. On disengaging it, however, the perch slipped out of the young man's hand and dropped into the water, leaving its eye on the hook that had drawn it out. The young man fixed the eye on the hook, and soon after throwing it in, he caught the perch which he had just lost with its own eye. This is said to have been a fact.

THE WHIG.

BRIDGETON,

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1822.

Our readers are informed that we have made arrangements to publish the proceedings of the legislature, up to Wednesday evening in each week, which is within two days as late as reported by the Trenton papers. This is the latest period to which we can publish weekly. In consequence of this arrangement a more than usual quantity will appear in this. We hope our exertions in this respect will be satisfactory, as we have not spared expense to furnish it. Several articles intended for our paper this week have unavoidably been crowded out.

We have been informed by a gentleman from Maurice River township, that the two girls who were shot, some account of which we noticed in a late number of our paper, are convalescent. Their recovery has been generally unexpected, but under the judicious and attentive care of Dr. Lorenzo F. Fidler, they were able to be about in three weeks. The boy who shot them appears rather to boast of the deed, than express any contrition for his wickedness. This, we fear, is ominous of what may happen to him in future, for such contumacious and unfeeling conduct is generally rewarded, at some period or other in life, with a punishment suitable to its merits.

Since our last there was only one arrival reported from Europe, and the news by it was unimportant, and only two days later than before received.

Advertisements omitted in this number will be inserted in our next.

A society of Carbonari, is said recently to have been discovered in Paris, with the object of overturning the existing government, by fomenting insurrections in the different parts of the kingdom, which they hoped would ultimately become general.

From the Steuben Patriot, Oct. 10.

American manufactures.—General McClure made a bet of fifty dollars, that he would take wool in the fleece and manufacture a suit of satinet cloth in ten hours. The bet was decided on Saturday last in his favor, having completed the suit and put them on, in 8 hours 46 minutes. The colour, was a blue mixture; the wool was coloured in 35 minutes, carded, spun and wove in two hours and 25 minutes; filled, knapped, dyed, sheared and dressed in one hour and 59 minutes; carried in 4 minutes, three quarters of a mile to Mr. Gilmore's shop, who with the assistance of seven hands, completed the coat, jacket and overalls in 3 hours and 49 minutes: there was half a yard of the cloth left, being in the whole 8 yards and a half, and of such quality as was estimated to be worth one dollar per pard. The general, offers to double the bet that he will make a better suit in less than eight hours, and dares the advocates of John Bull's manufactures to take him up.

MARRIED—Near Williamsport, Lycoming county Pa. Mr. WILLIAM JOHNSTON, Junr. to Miss MARIA, only daughter of Gen. William Cummings, all of that place.

OBITUARY.

Departed this life at his residence in Deerfield, on Wednesday the 23rd inst. JOHN MAYHEW, Esq. in the 47th year of his age. In the death of Mr. Mayhew the community has lost a valuable member, and religion a firm and decided supporter. As a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas for the County of Cumberland, he officiated with unimpeached integrity for a number of years. In the church of Christ to which he belonged, he was a pillar and an ornament. As a ruling elder of the Presbyterian church in Pittsgrove, he was active and useful. His private life corresponded to his public course. In the relations of husband, parent, neighbour and friend, he exhibited the sanctifying efficacy of the religion which he had many years cordially embraced. The writer of this article was intimately acquainted with the deceased; and he can, without embalming the object of friendship in the effusions of partiality, testify that Judge M. was a striking example of the power of Divine grace. To his mourning widow and numerous family and friends, the loss sustained in his removal would be doubly pungent, had they not the lively assurance of his present and everlasting happiness. The flock whom he served, look up to the chief Shepherd as their onip-leader under a bereavement as severe as unexpected.

DIED in Woodbury, N. J. on the 20th ult. WILLIAM SALTER, Esq. postmaster at that village.

In Gloucester township, N. J. on the evening of the 20th ult. MR. SAMUEL EYAN, a respectable young man, after a very short illness. What renders this dispensation peculiarly trying is that he was engaged to be married to a worthy young woman in the neighbourhood, and had passed Friend's meeting only the second day previous to his decease.

On board the U. S. ship Peacock, on the 28th of September, midshipman CHRISTOPHER LOWNDES, of apoplexy, a native of Maryland. And on the 7th ult. lieutenant THOMAS H. BOWYER, after a few days sickness. The navy is deprived of two promising officers, in the death of the above, who bid fair to be ornaments to the country.

Thales one of the wisest men of Greece.
A sophist wishing to puzzle him with difficult questions, the sage of Miletus replied to them all without the least hesitation, and with the utmost precision.

What is the oldest of all things?— God, because he has always existed.
What is the most beautiful? The world, because it is the work of God.

What is the greatest of all things?
Space, because it contains all that has been created.
What is the most constant of all things? Hope, because it remains with man when he has lost every thing else.

What is the best of all things? Virtue, because without it there is nothing good.
What is the quickest of all things?
Thought, because in less than a moment it can fly to the end of the universe.

What is the strongest? Necessity, which makes men face all the dangers of life.
What is the easiest? To give advice.
What is the most difficult? To know yourself.

What is the wisest? Time, for it discovers all things.
While Athens was governed by the thirty tyrants, Socrates the philosopher was summoned to the senate-house and ordered to go with some other persons, whom they wanted, to seize one Leon, a man of worth and fortune, whom they determined to put out of the way, that they might enjoy his estate. This commission Socrates flatly refused; and not satisfied therewith, added also his reason for such refusal, "I will never willingly" said he "assist an unjust act." Charicles sharply replied "dost thou think, Socrates to talk always in this high style, and not to suffer?" "Far from it," added he, "I expect to suffer a thousand ills, but none so great as to do unjustly."

Humor—His love to mankind was universal and vehement, and there was no service he would not have cheerfully done to his fellow creatures excepting that of suffering them to save their own souls in their own way.

A lady being asked, why she had married an ugly man, replied,—Lovers should always be handsome men; but husbands as it pleased God to make them.

A celebrated physician enquired of a priest, what regimen he observed in his mode of living. The good priest replied, that he never made but one meal in a day. Take care, said the doctor, that you do not make your secret public; you would ruin all our practice.

A dissembler, (who is generally a covetous and designing hypocrite,) is very dexterous at giving out news, and has a mint always about him to coin such as may be current and seasonable to answer his end.

It is not the lustre of gold, the sparkling of diamonds and emeralds, nor the splendor of the purple tincture, that adorns or embellishes a woman, but gravity, discretion, humility and modesty.
